

Traumatic Brain Injury Clinical Neuropsychology Service

This leaflet explains more about the Traumatic Brain Injury Clinical Neuropsychology Service. If you have any further questions, speak to a doctor or nurse caring for you.

What is the Traumatic Brain Injury Clinical Neuropsychology Service?

You have been referred to our service as part of deciding which treatment is best for you. Concerns about memory, attention, language, reasoning and general problem-solving abilities are common in people who have sustained Traumatic Brain Injury.

Neuropsychological assessment will help to understand your current strengths and areas of difficulty and consider possible influencing factors like medications and mood. This will help us to recommend the most appropriate treatment and advice to you and to the person who referred you.

How can Neuropsychology help?

The aim of the appointment is to help you:

- Make sense of why some tasks might be difficult for you
- Identify strategies to help memory, concentration or other thinking skills
- Provide information on services that may be able to help.

Who can attend / receive the service?

The service only accepts referrals from hospital clinicians. You will be sent an appointment letter to your home address with the details of your appointment.

Where do I need to go?

Appointments usually take place in Neurology Outpatients, Atkinson Morley Wing, St George's Hospital. We will let you know where your appointment is in your appointment letter.

What do I need to bring with me?

- A relative or friend who knows you well
- Reading glasses and hearing aids if you use these.

What happens at my appointment?

We will ask you about the kind of problems you are having and your friend or relative will be asked for their views. We usually ask you to do a variety of paper and pencil tests, which involve reading, drawing and looking at pictures. These are used to look at different abilities such as your memory and concentration.

People perform better when they are alone in the room with the psychologist, so we ask that relatives or friends are not present while this is conducted. The assessment will take 3-4 hours, but this differs from patient to patient and will be discussed with you at the beginning of the appointment.

What happens after my assessment?

The results will be discussed with you that day or at another time agreed with the neuropsychologist or your consultant. This will include recommendations for future care.

A report will also be sent to the person who referred you.

Does it cost anything?

Treatment is normally free to UK residents, however all NHS Trusts in the UK are legally obliged to assess whether a person accessing NHS hospital treatment is entitled to receive it.

What should I do if I cannot get to an appointment?

If you cannot attend your appointment, please contact our Booking Team as soon as possible: ☎ 020 8725 4321. They will arrange an alternative date. If you no longer wish to be seen please let us know as soon as possible so that we can offer your appointment to someone else.

What should I do if I would like an interpreter to attend an appointment with me?

If you need an interpreter, please contact our Booking Team: ☎ 020 8725 4321. Although family members or friends can be helpful in translating information, it is important that formal Neuropsychological assessment is facilitated by a trained interpreter should this be necessary.
